

Care About Childcare

Save the Date!

Dear Stakeholders and Early Child Care Educators,

Utah Department of Health (UDOH) and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) will be sponsoring a wonderful speaker to the Salt Lake City area. We are bringing Diane Craft, Ph.D., on April 27-28, 2018 to present More Than Child's Play: Physical Activity in Early Learning Settings. Diane is a professor, a consultant with the CDC and a subject matter expert on physical activity in early child care and education. She is well known for her work in helping young children be physically active and achieve its many health, cognitive, and behavioral benefits. A representative of the CDC, Allison Nihiser, MPH, will also be attending and co-facilitating the stakeholder workshop.

On Friday, we wish to invite you to a half day stake holder's luncheon/workshop; directors and administrators will learn about the significance of physical activity and why it is essential to the wellbeing of children. This will reinforce your decision to send your staff on Saturday to an interactive train-the-trainer day in which they will learn through hands on activities. This is a free event, includes lunch, an Active Play book, $100 reimbursement for hotel if traveling >50 miles (one-way), and six hours of continuing education credits. This format has been extremely popular and well received across the nation.
